not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of one or two days the lady came back with a company with a letter to the effect that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had not been in stock for some time. Then Kennedy, the manager of the grocery store, recommended her to get the medicine at the drug store. She was intrigued and wanted to know more. Although preparation I could not recommend, I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's

Has Tillman Betrayed Latimer?

The Greenville News of Wednesday published the following special: WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Latimer is here and is most indignant at the Willie Jones proposition. He will not say so, but he fears treachery at Tillman's hands. He says it is all right for Jones, who has a 5,000 job, but for the others it is quite another question. There is no doubt as to the following being facts:

It seems that two years ago Tillman in conference with Latimer and others, decided that McLaughlin must be beaten. Tillman told Latimer he was the man, to which Latimer demurred, but finally consented if Tillman would back him. Then Tillman promised to do so.

Late in the game, some time after the Gaffney meeting Jones comes into the race. Knowing the close intimacy between Jones and Tillman, Latimer cornered him, and finally Tillman told Latimer that if Jones ran he would have to be hands off.—Tillman will never back Jones. He knows too much about various and sundry checks. Now to settle the row between Jones and Latimer the Hampton incident is arranged with those who have influence with General Hampton. That puts the whole business out of the game.

The remarks relating to Jones and Tillman are rather obscure, but as we understand the matter, Latimer indicates that Tillman, having thought him to run and promised him his support, cannot back Jones in opposition to him, but on the other hand he cannot afford to oppose Jones, because Jones "knows too much about various and sundry checks." He seems to suspect that Tillman has fixed up the Hampton suggestion in order to release himself from the dilemma in which he was placed by the candidacy of the two men, neither of whom he could afford either to oppose or support.

"Take onions, salt and tobacco in about equal proportion, beat and mix them well together and bind the pulp to the affected part and relief comes almost instantly. Change the application every few hours until the poison is withdrawn, when the danger will be over. Some of the most poisonous snake or spider bite is easily cured by this treatment," says Dr. Merritt.

Many people will not thank Dr. Merritt for his new remedy. They have old snake medicine that requires no mixing. Some of them, believing that a poultice of prevention is better than an ounce of cure, take it all along to keep the snakes from biting them.

The Chester LANTERN, who so often catches other men's words, says: "Mr. Hazel McKewen, who clerks in Mr. H. Fudge's store at Fort Lawn, 'phoned up to his employer, 'where is your authority for 'clerks,' as used in the above'."

Reputable usage. We are certain whether it is the use of the word in this sense (an assistant or salesman in a store) or its use as a verb that is called in question. In either case it is well authorized, having been so used from time immemorial and over a territory the extent of which is unknown to us. We know that intelligent old people all over this country extending at least into other states, whose vocabulary was made up more than a hundred years ago used no other word to express this meaning, and all later generations have used it in the same way. Some of the dictionaries do not record this use of the word while others do. The dictionary's failure to record the use of a word, however, does not effect its correctness any more than the failure of a newspaper to mention an occurrence affects the fact of that event.

Now, while we are discussing the use of words, permit us to ask a question. What about "THE LANTERN" who? Where is your authority for "who," as used in the above?

Joining the Navy. "Why don't the newspapers advise these country boys to be careful before they enlist for the navy?" asked a prominent professional man in the same way. Some of the men last yesterday, and the illusion is soon dispelled I assure you. I was on the training ship Topeka talking with an officer when an awkward country-boy appeared and said: "Say, mister, I wish you'd show me my room." Now what do you suppose that boy thought when he saw his 'room'?

You know the color line is not drawn there as the southern boy would have it, and this must annoy the South Carolina recruits and make them feel degraded to sit at table with negroes and to swing their hammocks alongside of off-color seamen.

One woe-begone approached this officer with an awkward attempt at salute and asked, "Mister, can't you get me out of this business?" "What do you want out of?" "Well, I don't mind blacking officers' boots and being a servant generally, but I don't know what this life was and I want out of it." The officer asked, "How long have you been here?" "Four days," came the reply. "Well come back to me four years from now and I will give you your discharge," said the kindhearted officer.

A lady in Columbia states that her family was almost heartbroken because a son and brother insisted upon joining the navy. The youth with visions of glory and of adventure left home to take a closer view of the situation. He was back home in a few days.—Couldn't stand the language and the rough companionship of the navy.

The police of Columbia have received circulars offering a reward of $10 for the capture and return of John Jones or Tom Smith, etc., "straggler." As it would cost more than that amount to take a "straggler" back to the ship, the police would hardly pick one up, even if they were disposed to take him back to that life. These circulars are printed forms, showing that there must be a constant need for them while the training ship is in port.—The State.

Items from Yorkville Enquirer. Dr. W. D. Hope has recently purchased a portion of the Chas. Farrar plantation, adjoining the lands of Lockhart Mill company. We understand that he contemplates possession about the first of January next.

Rev. W. W. Orr, for the past three years pastor of the A. R. P. church in Corsicana, Texas, has accepted a call to the East Avenue A. R. P. church in Charlotte. He will be in Charlotte by the third Sunday in November.

Mr. A. W. Gladden, of McConellsville, was in Yorkville on business last Saturday. He stated that he will leave for Arkansas about next Saturday. "He goes for the purpose of 'spying out the land' and deciding upon a location. He will return in a few weeks and will go back again in company with his family later on."

Many remarkable stories have been told of the antics of the Catawba river during the recent freshets; but the strangest of them all came to the ears of the reporter a few days ago from a perfectly reliable source. The story is to the effect that near B-Imont, N. C., portions of the river bottom on which trees were growing to a distance of from 18 inches to two feet, washed down to a depth of six or seven feet, exposing hard earth, which bore the print of old corn crows, horse tracks, etc.

Mild Diphtheria. There have been quite a number of cases of diphtheria in Yorkville during the past few weeks; but all of them have been mild. "I confess that I have never seen anything like it," said Dr. Walker to the reporter on Saturday. "It is diphtheria; but the disease is mild, like as severe as it formerly was. Just why, I cannot say. Neither would I be willing to say that we might not have some dangerous cases to contend with at any time. I have administered anti-toxin in only a few cases. Generally the treatment has been confined to a little calomel, and I have been told that there have been cases that passed through the various stages of the disease, on recovery without any suspicion of the part of the parents as to what was the matter. I would not like to be quoted as saying that the disease, as it now appears, is not worthy of attention, or that it is a matter of indifference; but I do say that as yet there has been but slight occasion for alarm."—Yorkville Enquirer.

The commissioners of agriculture estimate this year's cotton crop at 9,500,000.

Under the Tower Clock.

"J. C. Robinson, successor to R. Brandt," is the style of the new jewelry firm that will operate "under the tower clock." Mr. J. C. Robinson, familiarly called Clough Robinson by his old acquaintances, came to town nearly seven years ago, employed by Mr. R. Brandt. He soon had the implicit confidence of Mr. Brandt and the community as well. Rarely has a young man come to town and in so short a time established himself so firmly in the esteem of the people. In the house where he was first employed, there he remained, making himself more and more indispensable as time went on; and now on the 1st of November he will succeed to the proprietorship of the business.

Mr. Robinson has had charge of the business to a large extent and knows it thoroughly. He knows the patrons and confidently expects them to continue to patronize him. In conversation, yesterday afternoon, he said, "I am going to keep only the best grade of goods and am going to sell them at the smallest legitimate margin. I am going to sell nothing that I can't guarantee, and if the purchaser is not satisfied I'll give the money back." He went on to express the belief that permanent success could be made only by dealing fairly and honestly.

We firmly believe that Mr. Robinson will do just as he says he will, and we believe, further, that he will make a success of his business.

The Parish Hotel.

It has not been practicable up to this time to get the exact dates as to the building of the different sections of the Parish hotel, but from the best information obtainable the structure was commenced by Samuel Wright in the early part of the last century, probably previous to 1810. "There is reason to believe that the part lately occupied as a barber shop was built first, and the south end of the building in which the office was located, followed shortly afterward. For many years there was a roadway between the two buildings, through which stages passed to the rear of the hotel. During the early forties, J. D. Goode built the portion that was afterwards used as a dining room over the former roadway, and the brick addition to the north end was erected in 1853 by J. H. Walker. Mr. C. G. Parish purchased the property in 1885, and added a wing to the rear of the older portion of the building.—Yorkville Enquirer.

Commissioners Can Levy Tax.

The supreme court decision in which it is held that county boards of commissioners have the right to fix tax levies for county and township purposes without legislative sanction or approval, is of startling interest and importance. Heretofore it has been the custom for the county boards to recommend the levies for the approval of the general assembly; but this arrangement has not been working without friction, especially in York county. More than once we have known the county commissioners to make the closest kind of calculation as to the probable needs of the county, not failing to take into consideration due regard for proper economy. When the recommendations would reach the county delegation in the house of representatives, they met with practically no personal knowledge of the requirements of the situation, would proceed to shave the suggested levy by a mill or a half mill and thus cramp the future administration of the county government. In making their levy the commissioners, who are generally men of as much intelligence as the representatives, are influenced by a full appreciation of their responsibility to the people. The representatives have more than once laid themselves open to a suspicion of having been influenced purely by a desire to put themselves in position to claim that they had "reduced taxes." The only practicable objection, of course, is a very cheap electioneering expedient. The expense to the taxpayers is often much greater than it would have been had the recommendation of the county commissioners been followed without a change. According to the decision just rendered, the county commissioners will hereafter not only recommend, but actually levy taxes for county purposes, and as we see it the result will give more general satisfaction to all concerned than can be realized under the present arrangement.

LOCAL NEWS.

Miss Mary Hafner is visiting Lincoln and Hickory, N. C., this week.

Mr. W. R. Nail attended the Poore-Payser marriage in Lancaster yesterday.

Dr. S. C. Miller is about to move into his house on West End, lately bought from Mr. T. H. White.

Ehrlich brothers have lost another good horse. Their gray dray horse got hurt a short time ago, and died a few days later from the injury.

Mr. T. H. White has moved to the Wylie house on York street. He had it renovated and many improvements made, both in appearance and convenience.

Miss Bertha Stahn went to Lancaster Wednesday evening to attend the marriage of Miss Pearl Payser to Dr. E. Poore. There was to be a large number of guests.

In the mayor's court for the month of September, Chief Taylor reports 30 arrests, 5 sent to the chainage, 10 dismissed, and $163.70 in fines collected.

Mr. John H. Barber, got 8,200 pounds of good peavine hay off two and a half acres of land. There are so many peas on the vines that they will make good feed without grain. He baled them on a cotton press.

We hear that Amos Hooper, alias Black Bud, has escaped from the Charlotte chainage, to which he was sentenced some time ago for carrying a razor about his clothes.

Representative Peter Hollis' was in town yesterday. He says a mail who has rheumatism can have a lot of first-class hurting going on all the time and get very little sympathy.

Mr. S. A. Murphy is' back home again after being absent most of his time since July 2nd. He had nine cases of fever to nurse during the summer and has not lost a case. His last case was Dr. Johnston, who he reports is clear of fever and able to walk around.

RECORDING SEC'Y.

Ready to Help Yorkville.

Chief Fireman J. S. Heyman had his men and reels ready Monday morning to start at a tick from the wires to aid Yorkville in subduing the fire. General Manager Nichols of the C. & N. W. had a special train ready to transport the firemen. The mayor of Yorkville had wired that the fire was threatening to spread from the Parish hotel, but later a message was received that it was under control.

Nicholson at Abberville.

Mr. A. B. Nicholson is going to open a furniture store at Abberville. He has here ready that business a handsome new furniture wagon just like the one in use here. We can safely assure the people of Abberville that their new furniture store will be no poky concern. Mr. Nicholson does not do business in that way. He is constantly expanding and improving, and is not too picaunish to let the public know that he is in business. He will make a stir in Abberville furniture circles.

Pension Board.

At a meeting of the old veterans of Chester county held Oct. 7th, J. H. McDaniel was called to the chair and W. H. Edwards was made secretary. W. H. Hardin stated the object of the meeting was to elect a pension board for Chester county. The following named persons were elected and will compose the board for the ensuing year: C. W. McFadden, J. H. McDaniel, W. H. Edwards and J. M. McDaniel. The board was then organized by the election of C. W. McFadden chairman, W. H. Edwards secretary, Dr. A. F. Anderson surgeon.

Telephone to Crosbyville.

Mr. J. T. Wight told us a few days ago that most of the poles were up for a telephone line from here to Crosbyville. This morning Mr. Jeff Boulware came in and got the wire and other materials for completing the line. This will not only give telephone service to that progressive neighborhood, but will give Chester far better connection with other places. Crosbyville is connected with Welling, Winoosco, Carlisle and perhaps other places, and we understand that a line will soon be completed from Carlisle to Union.

Bitten by a Snake.

Walter Gallman, a little boy at the Springtime mills was bitten by a snake Wednesday morning. Another little boy was drawing him along in a little wagon when he put his hand to the ground where the snake happened to be. Dr. J. M. Brice was called and the patient seems to be getting along well, though severely poisoned. The reptile was reported as a rattlesnake, but the tail, which we have seen, indicates that it is what is known as the ground rattlesnake. If there are any of the diamond rattlesnakes in this vicinity they are exceedingly rare.

Every Farmer should read the Bewley Hardware Co. advertisement in this issue on Harrows.

Good Luck to Theilings.

It is known that the Theiling Company, jewelers, have been local watch inspectors at Chester and Abberville for the Seaboard Air Line. A few days ago they received notice, without any application on their part, that they could have the inspectorship for the whole division from Monroe to Atlanta, if they would accept it. Of course this means that when the railroad officials determined to have the inspection for the whole division in the hands of one firm, the Theilings were selected as the most satisfactory, and their inspection extends into the city of Atlanta. When the office selects the man, it comes to Chester.

Who Knows Him.

Amzi Vance, a Chester Negro, was murdered in Charlotte last Saturday night, for a jug of whiskey. Accompanied by another negro named Dock Wilson, Vance was on his way to the Southern depot to take the train for home. Both negroes were carrying jugs of whiskey. Opposite the residence of Mr. Weddington two other Negroes approached them and presenting pistols demanded their whiskey. Vance and Wilson, instead of surrendering, showed fight, and Vance was shot dead. Wilson ran away. The two negro robbers grabbed the jug that Vance had been carrying and made their escape. A Yorkville Enquirer.

Amzi Vance is not known about town, but he may be from the county.

Beef, beef, beef—I am again in the market business and I hope to receive a part of your patronage. Next door to J. A. Owen's. Phone 101. J. A. Klutz.

R. Brandt.

We are not going to write Mr. Brandt's obituary, but we regret that this name, so long and favorably known in Chester, is to disappear from our business and social circles. The business conducted under this name is perhaps the oldest in Chester in unbroken line, and probably not another has been operated under the same name so long. The elder R. Brandt established a reputation for honest dealing and honest work that has been maintained to the present day, with progress in the lead of 20th century enterprise.

The present R. Brandt, after a course of liberal education in this country, spent a few years of study in the educational centres of Germany. After this he taught two or three years, then he became associated with a large jewelry house in New York. His father's death made it necessary for him to return to Chester and take charge of the business. Bringing with him the progressive spirit that he had imbibed in the metropolis, he went about improvement of a scale that caused the more conservative to shake their heads and predict collapse. That would do for New York, but Chester was not New York. That young man had fine taste, was up to date, and could run a jewelry store that would be a credit to the place, as long as the money lasted, but old man Brandt could have taught him a lot about running a safe business in Chester.

Two of the comments that we heard, a new front put in, the interior entirely changed, and the very latest and best in the way of shelving, counters, cabinets, and furniture generally was installed.

The business for a generation had been growing out into lines in which there was little profit and which interfered with the main business.

There was crockery, glassware, cutlery and other things that required room and marred the display of the finer goods. These were sold out, as well as all common grades of jewelry, and the business was limited to fine goods, more in keeping with a jewelry establishment, and it was extended in the direction of higher grades.

The business may be considered in three departments. There is the store in which is kept high class jewelry, silverware and other articles that usually go with that class of goods, watches, clocks, and optical goods. There is the watch and clock repair department, with expert workmen. Third, the optical department, for testing the eyes and fitting them with the most suitable glasses. Much importance has been attached to this department. Mr. Brandt himself being an expert optician.

The improvements inaugurated at the start were not only kept up, but every season brought something new and the house became more and more like a metropolitan establishment. But let it be understood that there was no empty display. The improvements were always in the direction of better or more stylish goods, and superior facilities for handling the business.

And the collapse didn't come. The business increased every year, the last forging far ahead of any preceding year. It was by no means limited to this immediate community. It extended over a radius of 40 to 50 miles, being advertised more or less in nearly all the papers within that distance. Of course orders were frequently received from a much greater distance.

Mr. Brandt was doing remarkably well here, but an opening presented itself which offered a much wider field for expansion. Athens is a city of 12,000 population, is an educational centre, having three or four colleges, and in other ways it is a desirable place for such a business.

We know nothing about the jewelry establishments of Athens, but whatever they may be, we will risk the prediction that Mr. Brandt will show the people of that city something that will surpass anything they have ever had in his line. We can assure them more over that when he sells them a piece of goods it will be just what he tells them it is, when he has a watch repaired it will be done right, and his warrant that goes with every sale and every piece of work will be made good.

To any reader of Athens to whose eyes this may come and who may think it is a pre-arranged puff for a consideration, we will say that we do not run a paper that way. It is a cheerful tribute to a worthy citizen and a progressive, and upright business man, as well as to the whole family, embracing three generations. They will know nothing of this writing till they see it in print.

Mr. Buchholz in Charlotte.

The Rev. A. C. Barron, D. D., of Charlotte, a distinguished minister of the Baptist church, will preach at the Chester Baptist church next Sabbath. Rev. H. C. Buchholz will preach at the First Baptist church of Charlotte. When it was learned that Mr. Buchholz would be in Charlotte, it was arranged to occupy his whole time, scarcely giving him time to eat and sleep. Besides preaching twice at the Baptist church, he is to deliver an address to the M. C. A., and one to the young men of the city, all these four efforts on one day, then on Monday morning he is to address the Ministerial Union.

Mr. W. R. Nail says Judge Ira B. Jones acted as toastmaster at the wedding in Lancaster yesterday and made a very beautiful address.

ON THE SURFACE

Thinly plated Silver ware looks like the Solid ware. You can tell the difference in the way it wears, but when the article you bought for Solid or Triple-plated turns out to be thinly plated, what are you going to do about it?

Goods bought of us are Sure

We know what they are and we tell you, fully and frankly, all we know about everything you ask to see. Everything is protected by our guarantee that it is just as we represent. "IT'S BETTER TO BE SURE THAN SORRY."

WHY

OWEN'S BREAD AND ROLLS ARE UN-X-L'D.

BECAUSE—His Baker spent seven years in learning how to make them.

BECAUSE—He uses pure high grade flour.

BECAUSE—It is regular and up to the standard.

BECAUSE—Every consumer who tries it wants it again.

Importation of Angora Goats.

The breeding of Angora goats in South Carolina, which has been undertaken on an extensive scale by Mr. J. H. Starin, of New York, and by other stock raisers experimentally on the sea islands about Charleston, is not a new industry in South Carolina. The first Angora goats imported to the United States were brought by a South Carolinian half a century ago, and for some years following considerable attention was given to the animals in this State and Georgia.

For some time past the United States Department of Agriculture has been investigating the subject of goat raising, which in the opinion of those who are taking an interest in the matter, is destined to become in the near future one of the prominent industries of the country.

A bulletin just issued under the direction of Secretary Wilson states, among other interesting information, that during the administration of President Polk the Sultan of Turkey requested of the Government some one who would experiment in cotton culture in Turkey. Accordingly, Dr. James B. Davis, of Columbia, was recommended and received the appointment. The work which he did was so gratifying to the Sultan that upon the return of Mr. Davis to the United States he reciprocated the courtesy of the president by presenting the doctor with nine Angora goats.

Dr. Davis imported Angoras from frequently exhibited fairs, and everywhere attracted much attention and received favorable comments. It was unfortunate for the industry at that time that the animals were thought to be of Cashmere breed, for everything that was known about the Cashmere goat was claimed for these goats. As an Angora goat can not fulfill the requisites of a Cashmere goat any more satisfactorily than Jersey cattle can serve the purpose of half breed, there was abundant room for the disappointment which soon followed, and which almost drove the Angora out of consideration.

"In 1853" the bulletin states, "the Davis goats were purchased by Col. Richard Peters, of Atlanta, Ga., with the exception of one owned by Col. Wm. Hampton, of South Carolina, one by Mr. Davenport, of Virginia, and one by Mr. Osborne, of New York. Later Col. Peters imported others, but they did not prove satisfactory. He is generally looked upon as the real founder of the Angora goats in the United States. Other importations occurred from time to time up to 1876. In 1881 the Sultan absolutely prohibited the exportation of Angoras, and this prohibition is still in effect. A few animals have been imported from Cape Colony. Notwithstanding the prohibition of exportations from Turkey, Dr. W. C. Bailey, of San Jose, Cal., visited Asia Minor during the latter part of this year, and in April succeeded in shipping out four goats. These arrived in New York in April and left quarantine there for their California home on May 9.

"The Angora goats" of these several importations found their way into many of the Southern and Central States, but for some reason they seem not to have become a permanent industry there. At the close of the civil war about half of the goats of this breed that remained in this country were in the Southern States, principally in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. Within the last few years they have gone into Oregon in large numbers, and quite recently several thousand have been taken into Iowa and Missouri. At the present time it can safely be said that they may be found in every State in the Union. An interest has manifested in them such as has never been known before, and it is believed that this interest will result in establishing permanently an industry that will extend to every part of the country."

The goats are increasing rapidly on Folly Island and on other islands about Charleston, and their breeding will soon be an important and profitable industry in this vicinity. —Charleston Evening Post.

Another Link.

Capt. D. C. Heyward, who spent the summer at Glenn Springs, has made a contribution to current history that springs from the fact that Theodore Roosevelt is now president of the United States. He says that the Rev. J. B. Dunwoody, a Presbyterian minister who is now living at Walterboro, officiated at the ceremony that made the parents of President Roosevelt husband and wife.

Mr. Dunwoody is a cousin of the president's mother, who was a Miss Bulloch, of Roswell, Ga., and at that account was asked to officiate at the marriage. The marriage took place at Roswell, Ga., in 1854. Mr. Dunwoody was quite a young man and had but recently entered the ministry. He is now about 75 years old and has retired from active work, but still preaches occasionally. —Spartanburg Journal.

What in Abundance.

For the first time in its history, says Leslie's Weekly, Kansas has more wheat than it knows what to do with. Not only are granaries and bins running over with grain, but the elevators are filled and the farmers are still bringing it to market by hundreds and thousands of bushels. The long dry weather was, in a sense, a bonanza for wheat raisers. Much of the grain was so heavy that it fell to the ground and would have been lost had there been wet weather. But with long, hot, clear days every straw could be gathered, most of the farmers running the threshing machines into the field and hauling the grain from the shocks to the machine. The grain has all been of the best quality and the yield from twenty to thirty-five bushels per acre. Not less than 80,000,000 bushels will be gathered, and the high price is giving the farmers a fine income.

As the strings of wagons come to market in the wheat belt the railroads were swamped. They could not furnish cars and the elevators were soon filled to overflowing. Even in the small stations twenty to thirty teams were waiting to be unloaded all day through the latter part of the threshing. The buyers finally began piling the grain on the prairie. Great heaps of 50,000 to 100,000 bushels have been stored on the open soil and there they will remain until such time as cars can be secured in which to ship the grain. The sun does not hurt it, no one can steal it and so little rain falls during the summer that there is practically no danger from that source. Some enterprising buyers have secured circus tents and placed them over the piles making curious features of the prairie landscape.

For sprains, swellings and lameness there is nothing so good as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Try it. For sale by all Druggists.

Which One?

The A. R. Presbyterian says that there is a strong likeness between President Roosevelt and the editor of the State. We had observed the same thing, but were afraid to mention it lest one of them might take offense. —Newberry Observer.
